To whom it may concern,

Suicide Prevention Australia is pleased to provide this letter of endorsement in support of the documentary project Jordan Liberty.

We have met with the filmmaker, Jason King, and reviewed the project in detail. We are confident that it represents best practice lived experience storytelling — grounded in ethical principles, respectful representation, and a clear commitment to minimising harm while maximising positive impact. The inclusion of expert insights alongside personal storytelling further strengthens the project's credibility and contribution to public understanding.

We believe Jordan Liberty has the potential to make a meaningful contribution to national conversations about suicide prevention and mental health, particularly in regional and rural Australia. It is a powerful example of how lived experience can be shared safely and responsibly to inspire compassion, awareness and action.

Suicide Prevention Australia is pleased to endorse this project and wishes it every success as it continues to develop and reach new audiences.

Yours sincerely,

Nieves Murray
